1970-1981

"Norah Anne Triska, our home grown and locally produced teacher"

They sure did some strange

Early in the year, 1972, an interesting incident occurred on the Phys Ed 30 camping trip to Jock Lake. Two of the teachers decided that they would rent a boat and try their luck fishing. So, they tucked the men in, distributed the teddy bears, jumped into their rented row boat and oared away. Fishing was great, and within a short time they caught their limit, and decided to go back in. However, they wished to return to the same spot, and so wanted to mark it. No sweat, said the wiser one, or Minimum perspiration because he also taught English as he pulled a piece of chalk from his pocket, and marked a big X on the bottom of the boat. They nearly got to shore when the quiet one asked, How can we be sure that tomorrow we will be renting the same boat?

the alberta mountains, fresh air, snow, sun, fun and a friend - oh how much we can learn about and from each other with the time we spend together. in the mountains all we have to do is worry about survival, clothes, food, shelter and love. after we have set up our shelter and put away our clothes and food, the only thing we can do is to get to know each other better. we don't have to worry about answering telephones or keeping appointments - we're free. we can say what is on our minds. we can work together keeping the fire going. we can walk in the snow with the sun shining down upon us as we watch god's nature live around us. we become a part of nature and nature becomes a part of us. we're living in harmony.

the 1980 football season was a record setting one for m.e. lazerte football. It was the first time in our existence that we won a playoff game. after finishing tied for second in the tough north conference, we easily defeated bonnie doon in the semi-final of the 2nd division bowl, and went on to defeat st. joe's in the final. this was the most exciting season in m.e.l. football history, and the prospects for 1981 look even better!

the senior boys' team captured the city championships and the junior boys' team skipped, but ken harris captured the division. the senior boys team placed second in the provincials, and earned the right to represent our school, for the second year, at the provincial championships.

congratulations to all of the participants. you displayed good sportsmanship as well as good curling. some of the boys will be graduating this year and will not be back to curl next year. to those fellows we say "thank you". for those who will be returning and those who will join the curling teams, we wish the best of luck in the future.

as the albatross soared,
i wanted too,
as the kite plummeted to the
ground ground
and then rose again,
i wanted too.
i gazed up and, wanted to be
there
the picnic table was too low,
the cliff too high
but still i wanted to be
there
the freedom of the heights
the openness of the sky
i wanted to fly.

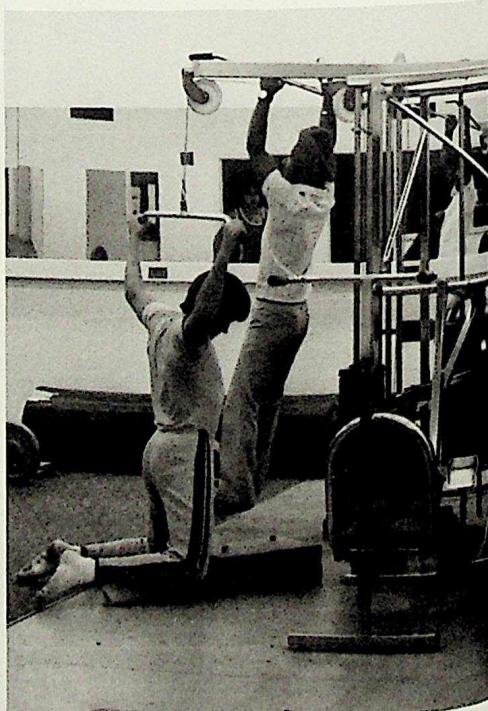

"You want six cases of WHAT?!"

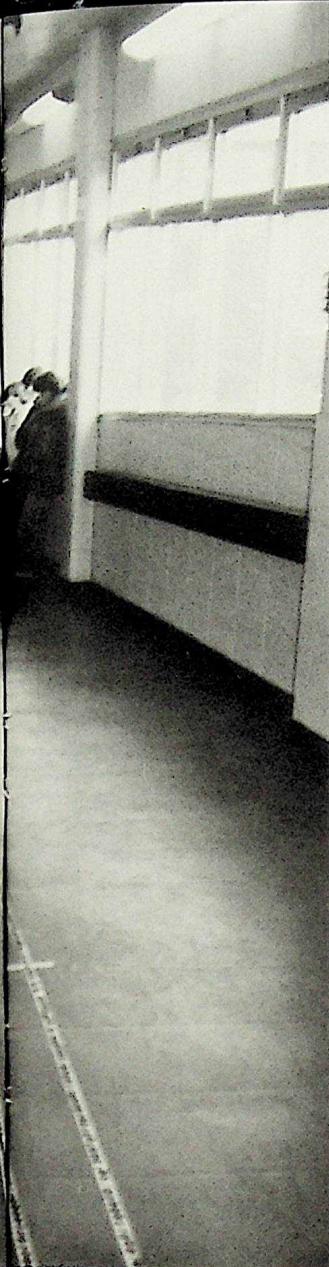

Darth Vader strikes again.

"the best years of my life" by barb debolt

instead of asking mother may i i asked, do i have to?
must i take that big step in life
from elementary to junior high.
now bigger from junior high
to high school.
now the biggest step of all
from high school into the world!
into a world that is not as happy
and free as it once was.
i ask myself again, and
i must!!
as i take that giant step
i say to myself,
i will make it,
i will strive to be happy
and i will make sure i know where i am going in life and
where i once was.
i will look back on my
school years as the ...
"best years of my life."

valedictorian speech by malcom zung ladies and gentlemen, mr. mayor, mrs. mills, fellow graduates, and people in general.

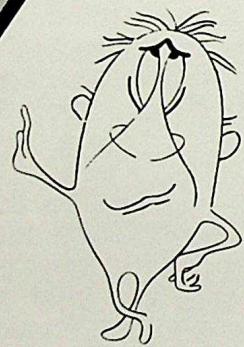

theoretically speaking, today is the final day of captivity for the 432 students held hostage in the institution known to the outside world as m.e. lazerte composite high school. however, due to the fact that our release is wholly dependent upon whether we pass our finals or not, it looks like we're treading on pretty thin ice. but with a little cramming and a lot of luck, we haven't got too much to worry about. besides, i've heard that they make grade 12 finals extra easy so that they'll be sure to get rid of us.

anyways, once we get out of this place and into the real world, i like to think that we, the class of '81, aren't going to be totally devoured by society. i like to think that instead of blending into the background of conventional society, we, as individuals, would rise above the plain and ordinary and become outstanding in our own special ways. i also like to think that we're actually learning something from the science department, so that tells you how ridiculous my thoughts really are. but nevertheless, i'd like to be able to hear many years from now that one of the people i graduated with has made it big in the world.

looking back over the 12 long years of bondage to our books that we have endured, i'm really quite surprised to find that these 12 long years weren't really that long after all. at least, we've been able to survive to the very end of all this nonsense without going totally bananas ... most of us anyways. but over the years, though, we've acquired a great deal of knowledge, probably the most important of which is never ever let anyone send us through the education system again. i mean school is nice, but i wouldn't want to make a lifestyle of it. who would?

but after all is said and done, it's still nice to know that we're finally going to get out of high school ... and i want you guys to go out and get them!!

MISCELL

ANIOUS

principal's message

the 'object' on the desk is dr. lazerte's teaching machine. he invented it and built it in the late 1930's. this was only one of the areas of education in which he was ahead of his time.

this school is aptly named for him. the staff and students have created a unique climate where each is allowed to try new ideas with all the support that is possible.

it is my wish that the pioneering spirit has become a part of you and that you will always have the joy and excitement of being on the cutting edge of change.

S.U. president's message

s.u. members "old and new":

well this is it! the end for some of us and the beginning for others.

i just wanted to take this opportunity to express my appreciation and gratitude to all of you, who made these past months as great as they were.

we should be proud of lazerte and prouder to say that we are a part of the growth of lazerte.

we're all here for the same reason - to make mel a better place to live for students as well as staff.

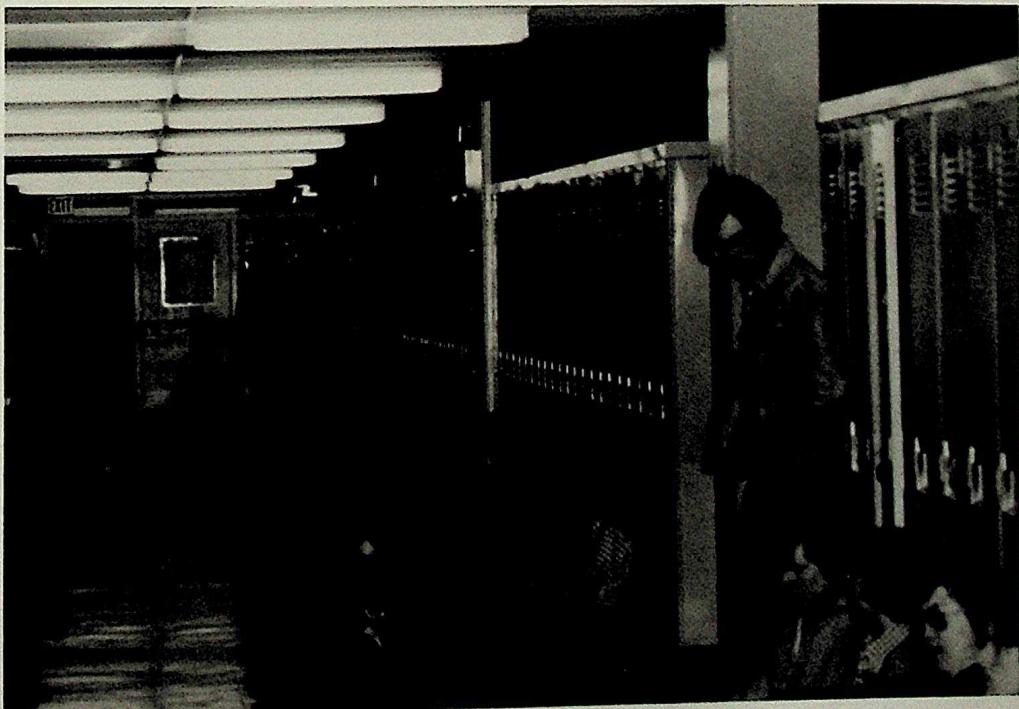

as each day passes, i think that we are one step closer to achieving our common goal.

i will always remember lazerte as "the best time of my life," not only because it was a good time - but because of all the very special people i met and had a chance to work with over the years.

i wish the best of luck to everyone here. to those of us who are "moving on" may you always have the ambition you have now.

and, to those of you remaining at lazerte - don't give up!! someday, it will all come together. it's not a lost cause.

thanks and good luck -
mona

yearbook editor's message

this has been a fantastic year for the yearbook. we had a few "minor" problems getting started, but we have finally completed our version of the mel '81 yearbook.

the best time i had this year as an editor was when i went to vancouver island, for the month of may, and left ann and andy in charge. even before i had gotten on the plane to leave i received a phone call asking where a set of certain pictures were. but even with this bad start together, ann and andy got over a third of the book done while i was away.

the one thing which we are a bit disappointed in were the amount of "parties" we had. the amount we had ought to go down in mel's history!!

but in any case it proved to be a very interesting year.

kevin and ann (co-editors)

ps. we're still looking forward to our pizza party!

m.e. lazerte entered its second decade. the 10th anniversary celebrations brought nostalgia and a renewed sense of commitment to the future development of the school.

the yearbook staff dreamed dreams and worked to make the dreams come true. to kevin parrot, ann deboer, andy young, and sherrie trott a special vote of thanks. without your dedicated enthusiasm there would have been a lot of white space!!

the first year our school opened, we had a fairly large group of senior students who had "tried on" nearly every other high school in the city. for one reason or another they had been asked to move on. anyway, when the mall was about to be built, mr. marshall and myself were discussing the social problems created by such a building - when some of the students suggested that because of their expertise they could tell the planners how to design the shops to prevent shoplifting. we offered our services to the mall people, but they didn't take us up - so died what i believe was the first faltering step of a young community school.

lasted for ten years

one day there were two students who were absent from my class. these students had been absent a fair amount and i had seen them earlier in the day. in addition they appeared to be romantically involved with each other. since it was a nice spring day i decided to take a little tour outside the school. i encountered the two students behind the arena. needless to say, they were not doing their mathematics. although not a word was said, they attended my class on a regular basis after that.

a fellow-teacher in business education, one mr. john renfree, really broke me up one cold day in march several years ago. he was talking to a student and, at the same time, was walking backwards. he accidentally tripped over a floor plug supplying electrical power to the business machines. with a startled look and all the grace of a bull elephant, he fought to stay on his feet. he simply refused to go down! mr. renfree, twirled, twisted, grunted and pirouetted his way around the class in order to regain his balance and composure. in the end, he had won, but was a good half-way across the room from where he had started. his student simply gaped in disbelief. the rest of the class simply carried on as if nothing had happened and as if it were an everyday occurrence. some say it is!!

an inspirational principal, mr. baker, usually used the first staff meeting of the year to tell a story. one parable concerned a child who drew beautiful flowers but was compelled by his teacher to color in the flower work sheets that were provided. mr. baker's story inspired most staff members into a state of acute boredom verging on unconsciousness. however, the moral of his tale, which we picked up in the first two minutes was genuinely practised in our school. this school has provided and will provide the kind of education which nurtures rather than constrains the intellectual, moral and social growth of our students.

one event which highlights the past ten years was the tremendous theatrical experience we enjoyed when we went to see the play, "twelfth night" at the citadel. our visits to the citadel have always been great fun but this one was really outstanding. as usual, we had booked the whole schoctor theatre and some seven hundred lazerte students attended. prior to the performance we had spent at least three weeks studying the play with our students, and so when the day of the performance arrived we were all eagerly anticipating seeing the play performed. the whole theatre was buzzing with excitement and i was aware of the theatre being charged with incredible energy. the play begins with, "if music be the food of love, play on", and our students really let the performers know they wanted them to play on.

They laughed and responded to the performance, generally demonstrating their delight in the play. when brent carver, the actor who played feste, the fool, played and sang, our students loved it and let him know it. the performance ended with our students singing with feste and thus ended a perfect and glorious afternoon. a few days later we teachers were thrilled to be able to read to our students, a letter, written by john neville, the theatre director, describing the whole casts feeling about the afternoon. the letter follows:

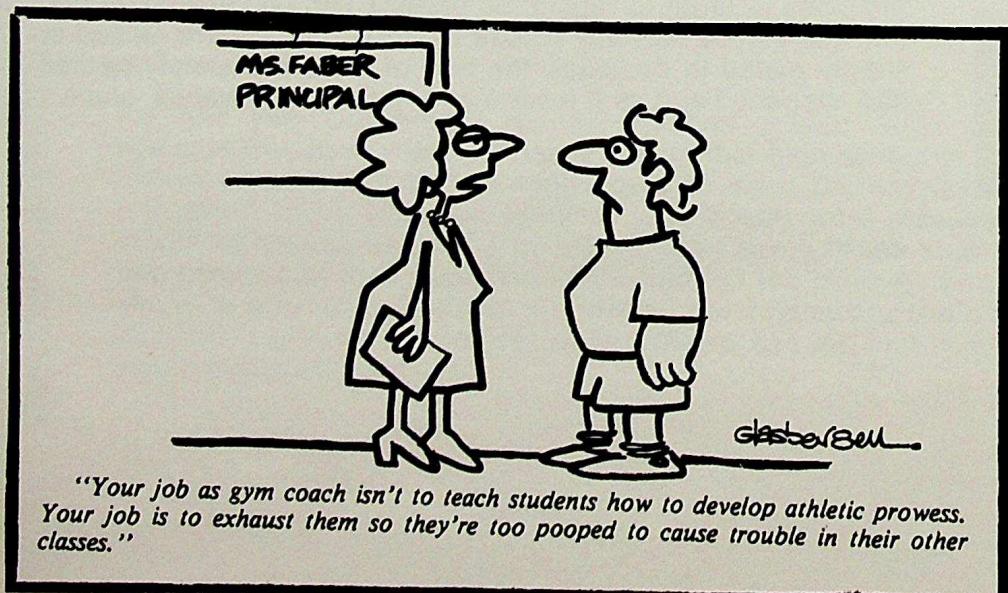

dear mr. baker:

on behalf of the cast of twelfth night, i would like, if i may to thank our audience of yesterday afternoon.

they were by far the best audience we have had or will have for twelfth night. they were in fact magnificent, they were of course impeccably behaved.

your young people may have noticed at the end of the play that the whole cast spontaneously applauded the audience. this has never happened before in my five years in this theatre. thank you all again.

the late william hrychuk, teacher and idealist, a man deeply committed to making educational institutions human development centers for life skills.

the late hilliard cass, head custodian from 1970-1981 who demonstrated an understanding of community education in all his contacts with staff, students, and people who use the school. at grade 10 orientation sessions "hill" gave practical information about heating systems, custodial duties, and responsible behavior.

the late tom williams, a young man who attended this school from september to december of 1980. tom died in april of 1981. may this help us remember a very courageous person. tom suffered from cancer for the last year of his life, but even so, his somewhat dry sense of humour prevailed as his "art work" and literary attempts show.

"kinkaphobia: to some it is just a word. to others it is a way of life. williams' dictionary describes it as an unnatural fear of kinks in the muscles." this is an excerpt from his essay on, what else, kinkaphobia. an avid "monty python" fan, tom would quote bits from one sketch or another until you wanted to strangle him. but, his sense of humour kept him and his family smiling.

feelings to tom were never half-way. he was fiercely proud and independent, even to the end, and when he was on a rampage, it was best to stay out of his way. tom was a faithful friend and a loving son and brother. we all shall miss him.

may this page help us remember and the memory make us smile.

Basketball and Soccer team.

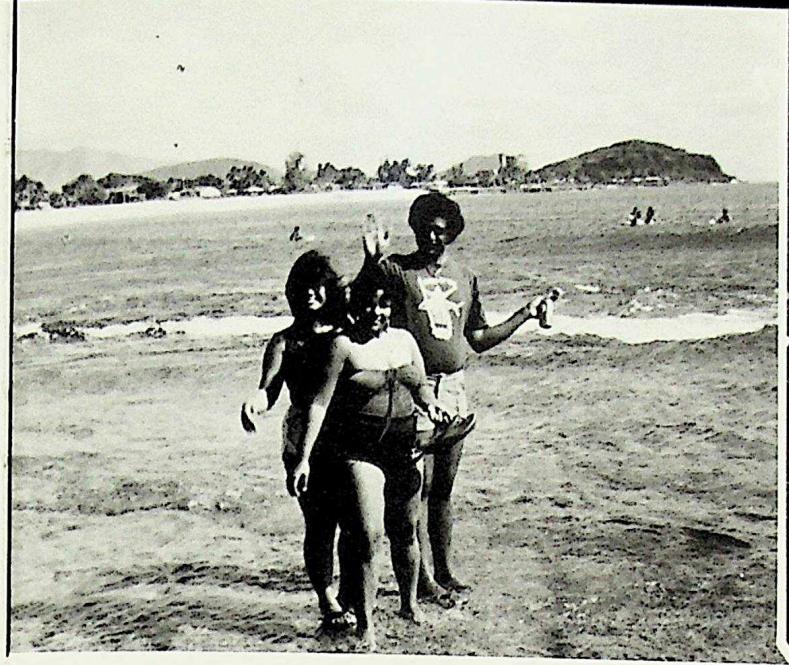

the m.e. lazerte provincial girls' basketball champions and the strong boys' soccer team were very fortunate this year to travel to hawaii. the teams played some games and learned much about hawaiian culture. many wonderful friendships developed and we'll have fond memories of our hawaiian families for years to come.
